REPORT.

THE first year since the organization of the "Women's Pennsylvania Branch" has passed. Nearly two years of civil war had desolated our country, when, inspired by the work which the women of New York and Boston had accomplished under the auspices of the United States Sanitary Commission, this Branch was established, in the face of many difficulties, by the women of Philadelphia.

On the 26th of March, 1863, the Committee on Supplies of the Philadelphia Agency of the United States Sanitary Commission, transferred their department to the Women's Pennsylvania Branch. At that time, the Agency numbered 110 contributing societies. We now have 320.

The work is conducted by an Executive Committee: two of whom, with the Chairman, Corresponding Secretary, and their respective aids, attend at the rooms daily.

When first they entered upon their duties, it was found that a feeling of discouragement had arisen among many of the aid societies throughout this State as well as in New Jersey and Delaware. Some were still laboring with spasmodic efforts; others had died out entirely; while a few only were continuing their work systematically and thoroughly. In some towns, the Sanitary Commission was found to be unknown, even by name, and all information concerning this far-reaching and reliable channel of the generous offerings of the people was eagerly sought for. The free circulation of published documents placed in its true light the wise and beneficent workings of the Sanitary Commission.

But a few weeks elapsed before this newly awakened interest manifested itself in a large increase of supplies. Cheering letters were daily received; not unfrequently announcing the uniting of aid societies as auxiliaries of our Branch; which societies have been our stay and our strength. Month after month, the fruit of their faithful and systematic labors has replenished our store-rooms; and their earnest appreciative letters quickened our hearts anew to the great work which has fallen upon the women of our land. Words fail us in expressing all we owe them—ties of the warmest friendship have been formed between those who had never met, and will endure, we trust, when the common interest that now unites us, shall no longer need our sympathy and our support.

But nobly as the women of Pennsylvania have responded to our call upon them, there is still more to accomplish.

We shall not be satisfied until every township in each county has been heard from in the way of contributions. Out of twenty-seven townships, in Susquehannah county, twenty-five have already sent us supplies. We hope that other counties will, in the year upon which we have entered, emulate its example.

We take great pleasure in referring to the increased energy and interest in the cause of the Sanitary Commission, evinced in New Jersey and Delaware. A considerable number of new societies, auxiliary to the Philadelphia Branch, are reported as formed or about to be formed in these States.

The letters from our Associate Managers frequently allude to the improved state of feeling and appreciation of the work on the part of the people generally. There is still, however, much to be done in both these States, as well as in Pennsylvania, and we hope every effort will be made by all who have it in their power to increase the success of our cause.

To those ladies whose attendance at the rooms of the Pennsylvania Branch has been so constant, who have been so unwearied in their exertions—through summer's heat, or winter's cold—performing the arduous duty of assorting and repacking the contents of the numerous boxes sent to us, much of our efficiency is due. Nothing but the sacredness of our cause could have incited labors oftentimes beyond their strength. The only complaints that we have ever heard from their lips, have been made because they had not more to do. Our books kept by volunteer aids, have been so neatly and accurately posted, as to elicit the question, whether they were not in charge of a salaried book-keeper. The services of these Aids have been invaluable.

Our regular aids have all been untiring in the performance of their duties. No day so stormy, but that some were found at their post; no labor, however disagreeable, but all were ready to share it. When impelled by unusual demands to extraordinary exertions in the sending off of supplies, hands unused to the saw or hatchet, have fitted the covers on the boxes, and driven in the nails that secured them.

Their smiling faces and cheerful voices, have made gloomy days seem bright to us, and helped the hours of toil to pass swiftly. To our citizens generally we owe much for their kindly interest, and their abundant liberality. Especially are we indebted to the various railroad and express companies that have either made a diminution in their charges, or taken all our packages free.

Our grateful acknowledgments are due to Messrs. W. P. Wilstach, William S. Stewart, O. W. Davis, Randolph & Jenks, C. J. Peterson, A. J. Drexel, Martin Nixon, Edward A. Jessup, A. D. Jessup, and B. H. Moore, who have kindly assumed the rent of our ware-room for the past year. Also to the editors of the Saturday Evening Post, and the Evening Bulletin, for the use of their columns, both having devoted a space weekly to our communications.

To Messrs. Howell & Bros. we are indebted for the papering of our office and wareroom. To Messrs. Evans & Hassell for the three handsome flags which decorate the Sanitary Commission building. To Mr. Moss, Messrs. Carson & Co., and others, for stationery. To Mr. Blanchard for services in upholstering. It is not necessary to to enumerate in this Report the various branches of work undertaken by the Commission, nor to explain its mode of operation. Public documents have entered fully into such details. The Sanitary Bulletin issued semi-monthly, from 823 Broadway, New York, contains a fund of interesting material, explanatory of the workings of the Commission, and all that we could say would be a mere recapitulation.

But we are in danger of forgetting, unless frequently reminded, that the amount of suffering among our sick and wounded soldiers is beyond all that the united efforts of the Medical Department and the Sanitary Commission can effect with their present resources.. If you would alleviate this suffering, send the Sanitary Commission a larger amount of supplies.

“The objection has been brought against the Commission that its officers receive large salaries.

“The President, Treasurer, Medical Committee, and Standing Committees, give time and services gratuitously.

“Their agents, two hundred in number, general and associate secretaries, medical and sanitary inspectors, relief agents, clerks, depot and storehouse keepers, wagoners, &c., receiving some more and some less, average just two dollars per day, or less than ordinary mechanics’ wages.

“About fifteen-sixteenths of all the eight millions the Commission has received, goes on to the backs, or into the mouths of the soldiers.

“The cost of collecting and distributing supplies is less than three per cent.

“About twenty-three hundred men are now, and for a long time have been, in daily use and enjoyment of the homes and lodges of the Commission.

“The battle-field service of the Commission requires a large accumulation of funds and of supplies. At Murfreesboro’, Antietam, Gettysburg, Chattanooga, Vicksburg, Port Hudson, sudden and vast demands were made, and are always likely to be made. Fifty thousand dollars would not cover the cost of our whole service in the first two weeks after any one of our great battles—at Gettysburg it was $75,000.”

Another objection raised against sending supplies to the Sanitary Commission is, that “the Government ought to furnish what is needed." No government has ever been able to keep permanently connected with its medical department a sufficient number of men to relieve the wounded after a great battle. Without volunteer aid at such times, the suffering and waste of life would be greatly increased; but volunteer aid to be efficient must be regularly organized, or the medical department be embarrassed by unreliable and ill-arranged methods. The Commission, with its large corps of officers and agents on the ground, experienced in their duties, enjoying the confidence of the Government, and in communication with the military authorities, seems the very best organization through which the sympathy and affection of the people can reach and relieve the people's army.

We have every reason for hoping that this will be the last year of the war. Let every woman do her share towards contributing to the comfort of those whose valor is to make it so, and not one demand will have to remain unanswered. There will be an abundance for all; but heretofore, much as the Sanitary Commission has accomplished, we have seen that a great deal more has had to be left undone for want of means. Those who have lost husbands, sons and brothers in this war, need no urging, but to those whose households hold no vacant seat, we cannot refrain from appealing. You know but little of the desolation of this war: but you know enough to realize how eagerly you would give the half of your possessions, were it to save some cherished object of your love. You are not called upon to make this sacrifice. All that is asked of you is to hold in remembrance those whose lives you may be instrumental in saving, if you be but faithful to the duty which God has imposed upon the women of our land.

The Finance Committee will embody its Report for the past year in that of Mr. Cope, the General Treasurer of the Philadelphia Branch.

REPORT OF SPECIAL RELIEF COMMITTEE.

THE Special Relief Committee, as established in April, 1863, had for its object the care of discharged disabled soldiers, providing transportation for soldiers going home on furlough, and relief of every kind to the men in the hospitals in our city.

Finding this work more than could be properly accomplished by women, (and an agent being employed by the Sanitary Commission to attend to it,) the attention of the Committee was turned to the families of our soldiers, and in the case of these poor women and children the labor of the Committee has not been without success.

During April, May, June and July, the Committee depended for funds on those persons disposed to contribute to their treasury. Nothing was drawn from the funds of the Sanitary Commission until August. During August, September and October, three hundred dollars each month was paid to the Committee by the Treasurer (Mr. Cope). On the first of November the Committee received two hundred dollars from Mr. Cope, with the assurance that that sum would be the last which could be given for the families of soldiers, as that was scarcely a legitimate channel for the funds of the Sanitary Commission.

Feeling the justice of this decision, and yet knowing that many a hearth must be left cold, and many a table bare if the work hitherto provided for the widows, wives, mothers and daughters of our soldiers were withdrawn, the Committee at once bent all its energies towards raising means to carry on the work, at least, through the winter months; that the battle of life might be successfully fought by those near and dear to the men fighting for the country.

Each member of the Committee did her best, and the result has been greater than could have been anticipated by the most sanguine.

Since November 1st, 1863, the Treasurer of the Committee has received five thousand eight hundred and thirteen dollars and twenty-five cents. Three hundred and fifty tons of coal have been distributed; which have been donated by coal-dealers, all having already been acknowledged in the printed Monthly Reports of the Committee. Between the 1st of April, 1863, and the last of November, more than four thousand garments were made under the direction of the Committee, by the women employed for this purpose. During the month of March, 1864, four thousand six hundred and thirty garments have been made and paid for. The women receive the work gladly, and in most cases, return it punctually. Each applicant for relief is visited by the Committee in charge, and every possible precaution is taken to prevent imposition.

Women with children, who have never lacked before for any comfort, have been found literally starving, and seeing nothing in the future, but that dreaded home, the Almshouse. Individual cases could be cited in proof of this, were proof needed—but the Report for the year is already too large.

The Committee hope that while the war lasts their labors will go on successfully.

We hope due allowance will be made for all inaccuracies in the preceding list. They were entirely unavoidable. Some names which should appear are no doubt omitted, owing to our having failed to receive letters from some Societies which had sent us contributions. We have made the list as accurate as possible, considering the difficulties of the case.
